However, some sales representatives may earn commissions based on how many and how valuable the transactions they facilitate are, as well as their overall performance. This may give them a reason to favour certain products or services over others. We check and evaluate the payment arrangements of our staff regularly to make sure they are fair and reasonable and do not conflict with our duty to act in your best interests.

Third parties

Sometimes, we may get customers from other people or businesses who refer them to us. We may pay a fee to these referrers for their service. Some of our staff may also receive referral fees as part of their remuneration. If you want to know more about how much and how often we pay these fees, you can ask us before we provide our services to you.
